Indian Voices • Lithium Mining

Submitted by: Clarence Gonzales on behalf of Ivan Bender

Hang'yu, to all my Hualapai Relatives as you know our Ancestral Land from Big Sandy to Burro Creek, in Wikieup AZ. Currently, is under construction for Lithium Mining, with four different drilling companies, who plan to start the process.

We, the Hualapai and local residents of Wikieup and other Native American activists, from States far and near, combined with Non-Natives, have come together to speak out against the mining. To stop these companies from desecrating our Ancestral Land and our "Precious Water", we need clean water for "Water Is Life, Water Is Sacred". Many stories are shared of this Wikieup Valley.

"Home of one's Hualapai Land", Help Protect this Sacred Land of our Hualapai Ancestral People, let's stand for what we Believe in. We need to save the Beauty, and sacred sites. We need to preserve this land for our future Generations. We have a rich tradition and culture. That our ancestors told stories of, these lands. Please join us on the fight to preserve and protect our home Lands. So, our land can be saved.

- Ivan Bender/ Hualapai Tribe

As, the protest to save our Big Sandy Ancestral Land is still an on going battle and process, we need to understand the severity of what lithium mining can do to our resources. Our water resources can be wiped out and might not be replenishable. For the fact that it takes a high volume of water supply to accommodate the lithium mining project. For now, we can say that our water- aquifers are in good standing. Although, soon, might be leaving a big part of Mohave County in water shortage.

Support the "Ha'kamwe" Protest and say "NO", to lithium mining.

News Release • Mitigation Plan Review & Comment Requested

Submitted by: Kevin Davidson | Hualapai Planning Department

Mohave County Multi-Jurisdictional Hazard Mitigation Plan Review and Update Public Comment Requested

MOHAVE COUNTY, AZ (December 15, 2021) -- A planning team comprised of representatives from Mohave County, City of Kingman, Bullhead City, Lake Havasu City, Colorado City, the Fort Mojave Indian Tribe, and the Hualapai Tribe have developed a draft 2022 Mohave County Multi-Jurisdictional Hazard Mitigation Plan. This is an update of the 2016 Mohave County Multi-Jurisdictional Hazard Mitigation Plan, which has been available on the Mohave County Risk and Emergency Management website for public review since 2016.

Public input on the current plan is important and very appreciated, and residents are encouraged to review the plan and offer comments.

Click here to review the review the draft 2022 Multi-Jurisdictional Hazard Mitigation Plan at:

https://resources.mohavecounty.us/file/EmergencyManagement/Plans/Working%20Copy%2012-15-21.pdf.

Mohave County residents can send comments to the Mohave County Risk and Emergency Management Department; attention to Jazmyne Tarkowski, TarkoJ@mohave.gov; 928-753 -0739.

This planning effort is being conducted in accordance with the Disaster Mitigation Act of 2000, which requires all local, county, tribal and state governments to have a FEMA approved hazard mitigation plan to be eligible for federal disaster mitigation funds. The plan focuses on the area's most threatening hazards and provides a strategy to reduce or eliminate the risk from those hazards to the people and property of Mohave County.

Mitigation is not a response to emergencies like floods and wildfires, but rather is a jurisdiction's strategy for preventing or significantly reducing the impact of such hazards prior to their occurrence. The mitigation planning process involves identifying and profiling the natural hazards most likely to occur in a community, assessing the vulnerability of critical community facilities and structures, as well as population, to these hazards, and establishing goals, actions, and projects that mitigate the associated risks.

Please provide comments by December 29, 2021.

VOLUNTEER TO BE A VOICE FOR YOUNG CHILDREN IN YOUR COMMUNITY

Make a Positive Impact on Children and Families in your Community

Are you passionate about children's issues and want to provide vision and leadership on the early childhood programs available to young kids in your community? Then First Things First (FTF) needs you.

FTF is Arizona's early childhood agency and is looking for about 150 volunteers who will collaborate with other dedicated community members in local communities across the state. In the FTF Hualapai Tribe Region, there are three openings on the regional council. The application process is a simple online application found at FirstThingsFirst.org/serve.

Volunteering on a regional council is a unique leadership opportunity to make a positive impact on children and families in our community. Regional council members have a passion for ensuring that every baby, toddler and preschooler has every opportunity to succeed. They help define priorities for the local services and supports for young children and their families. By collaborating with other dedicated community members, regional council members provide opportunities for young children to get a strong start in life.

Research has shown a child's early experiences lay the foundation for a lifetime of success in school and beyond. FTF partners with parents and communities to give children birth to age 5 the tools they need to arrive at kindergarten prepared to succeed. Regional councils made up of community volunteers inform decisions about how FTF can help strengthen families, expand early learning opportunities and increase access to preventive health services in their area.

FTF is accepting applications in the Hualapai Tribe Region from various backgrounds for the following seats that are open. Regional council members must live or work in the region. The regional council seats open in the region are:

- Early childhood educator
- · Parent of a child 5 or younger
- Other (at-large seat)

If you or someone you know can commit to about 10 hours per month to make a difference in the lives of young children in our community, please visit FirstThingsFirst.org/serve. COVID-19

Understanding Isolation and Quarantine

1. If you have any symptoms such as fever, body aches, chills, sore throat, loss of taste or smell, self-quarantine and make an appointment for a COVID-19 Test by calling 769-2900.

Remember, if you are sick, you can get others sick.

Self-Quarantine: Once you test, self-quarantine until you know the results of your test.

If you test Positive: You will be placed on isolation for Ten Days and monitored daily by a I H S Public Health Nurse either by telephone or direct home visits.

Exposure to a Positive Person: If you have been exposed to a Positive Person, Self-Quarantine for 7 days, get tested 3 to 5 days from the exposure date.

Quarantine: Means stay home when you have been exposed to see if you become sick.

Isolation: Means STAY HOME while you are sick. Everyone in the household must isolate-in-place and will be monitored by the Public Health Nurse.

Isolation-Quarantine will NOT end until you have been directed by the Public Health Team, if you violate the terms of isolation or quarantine you are subject to hefty fines that may include jail-time.

COVID-19 QUARANTINE VS. ISOLATION

QUARANTINE

keeps someone who was in close contact with someone who has COVID-19 away from others.

Quarantine if you have been in close contact with someone who has COVID-19, unless you have been fully vaccinated.

If you are fully vaccinated

- You do NOT need to quarantine unless they have symptoms
- Get tested 3-5 days after your exposure, even if you don't have symptoms
- Wear a mask indoors in public for 14 days following exposure or until your test result is negative

If you are not fully vaccinated

- Stay home for 14 days after your last contact with a person who has COVID-19
- Watch for fever (100.4°F), cough, shortness of breath, or other symptoms of COVID-19
- If possible, stay away from people you live with, especially people who are at higher risk for getting very sick from COVID-19
- Contact your local public health department for options in your area to possibly shorten your quarantine keeps someone who is sick or tested positive for COVID-19 without symptoms away from others, even in their own home.

ISOLATION

People who are in isolation should stay home and stay in a specific "sick room" or area and use a separate bathroom (if available).

If you are sick and think or know you have COVID-19

Stay home until after

- At least 10 days since symptoms first appeared and
- At least 24 hours with no fever without the use of fever-reducing medications and
- Symptoms have improved

If you tested positive for COVID-19 but do not have symptoms

- Stay home until after 10 days have passed since your positive viral test
- If you develop symptoms after testing positive, follow the steps above for those who are sick

How much physical activity do you need?

Here are the American Heart Association recommendations for adults.

Fit in 150+

Get at least 150 minutes per week of moderate-intensity aerobic activity or 75 minutes per week of vigorous aerobic activity (or a combination of both), preferably spread throughout the week.

Move More, Sit Less

Get up and move throughout the day. Any activity is better than none. Even light-intensity activity can offset the serious health risks of being sedentary.

Add Intensity

Moderate to vigorous aerobic exercise is best. Your heart will beat faster, and you'll breathe harder than normal. As you get used to being more active, increase your time and/or intensity to get more benefits.

Add Muscle

Include moderate- to high-intensity muscle-strengthening activity (like resistance or weight training) at least twice a week.

Feel Better

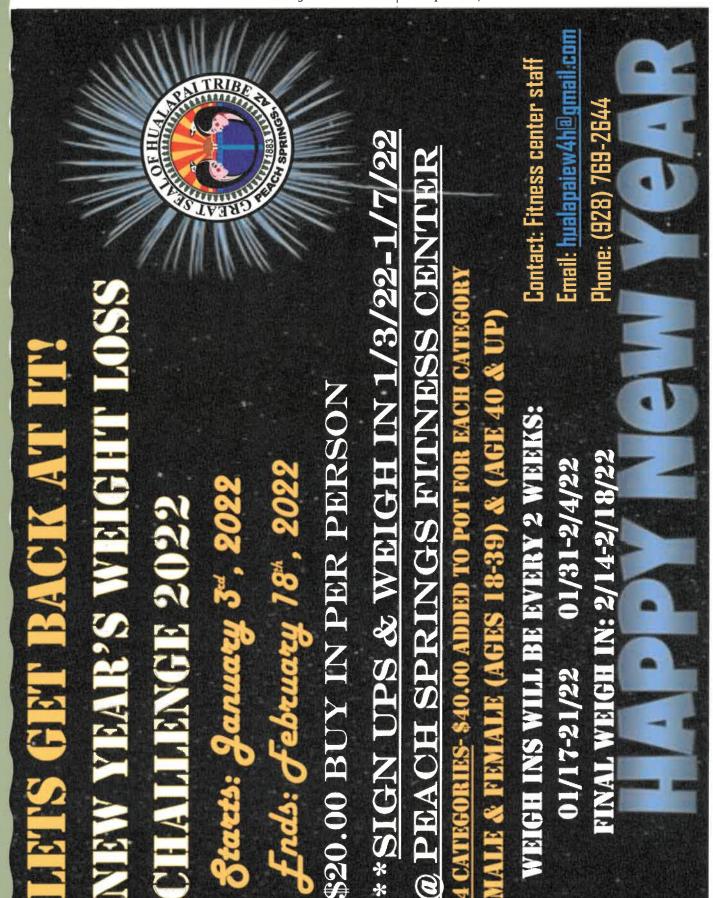

Physical activity is one of the best ways to keep your body and brain healthy. It relieves stress, improves mood, gives you energy, helps with sleep and can lower your risk of chronic disease, including dementia and depression.

Move more, with more intensity, and sit less.

Grief and Moving Forward After a Loss

GRIEF AND MOVING FORWARD AFTER A LOSS

Published on November 12, 2019 | https://themeadowglade.com/grief-moving-forward/

Understandably, death is something that's hard to cope with. We miss those we loved and shared our lives with, but it is also a time to reflect and remember the good times.

The loss of a loved one is a tragic event in anyone's life. The phrase "moving on" is hard to understand and is not helpful for anyone who is going through this loss — but you can at least strive to move forward.

But what about when our emotions make it difficult for us to move forward after a loss? Grief can explain the initial feelings of sadness and mourning we experience after the death of a loved one — and even the more complicated experience of full-blown depression following a loss.

LOSING A LOVED ONE

Grief is described by Webster's Dictionary as "deep sorrow, especially that caused by someone's death." As its definition implies, grief is a strong and overwhelming emotion. People often find themselves feeling numb and mentally removed from daily life, unable to carry on with regular duties while saddened with their loss.

It's a natural reaction to feel grief when you lose someone — yet it's also important to know that everyone experiences grief differently. Mourning the loss of a loved one can last for months or years. A person can feel fine one day and the next, may feel depressed all over again.

Though grief looks different for everyone, psychologists define grief in fairly specific terms. Here's how professionals recognize the signs of grieving in a person who's experienced a loss.

STAGES OF GRIEF

According to Swiss psychiatrist Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, there are five different stages of grief. The five-stage grief model was based on her work with terminally ill patients, and strives to define a common experience of grief.

- Denial: The first phase is denial. When you first learn of the loss, it's hard to comprehend. You are often left feeling shocked and numb. It is the initial stage that helps you survive the loss.
- Anger: As reality sets in, you have to face the pain of your loss. You may feel angry and helpless and you might unintentionally direct your anger towards other people. It is important to remember that it is no one's fault and to find other ways to manage your grief.
- Bargaining: During this stage, you dwell on what you could've done to prevent the loss. No matter what happened, the loss was not your fault — yet during this stage of grief, you may struggle to recognize this.
- 4. Depression: Sadness sets in as you begin to understand the loss and its effect on your life. Signs of depression include crying, lack of sleep (or sleeping all the time), loss of appetite, feeling overwhelmed and loneliness. Unlike clinical depression, this is recognized as a normal part of the grieving process—as long as it lasts for a reasonable amount of time.
- 5. Acceptance: In this final stage of grief, you accept the reality of your loss and begin the difficult, yet important process of moving forward with your life. This can be the hardest stage of grief to cope with, but one of the most rewarding, as it allows you to continue to lead a full life and honor your loved one's passing.

On the way to feeling better, you may go through several of these phases of grief, although not all phases are typical for everyone. Everyone goes through the different stages of grief at a different pace. What may work for some people in terms of how to handle grief may be different from you.

It is okay to experience grief differently from how you are "supposed to" experience it. Regardless, the most important part of grief is finding a way to move forward.

COMPLICATED GRIEF VS. ORDINARY GRIEF

But what happens when you feel you are unable to move forward from this loss, and allow it to consume your everyday life for longer than you should? According to the National Library of Medicine from the National Institutes of Health, ordinary grief can turn into another condition called complicated grief when it lasts longer than usual. Psychologists disagree on what they consider a "normal" amount of time to grieve, but most agree that six-to-twelve months is a standard grieving period.

Complicated grief is a recently recognized condition that occurs in seven percent of bereaved people. Those suffering from complicated grief tend to be caught up in rumination about the circumstances of death, worrying about its consequences or excessive avoidance of reminders of the loss. They are unable to comprehend the finality and consequences of the loss.

Prolonged symptoms of complicated grief include:

- Intense sadness and emotional pain
- Feelings of hopelessness
- Yearning to be reunited with the deceased
- Preoccupation with the deceased or with the circumstances of the death
- Difficulty engaging in happy memories of the lost person
- Avoidance of reminders of the deceased
- A reduced sense of identity
- Detachment and isolation from surviving friends and family
- · Lack of desire to pursue personal interests or plans

Ordinary grief is a psychological response to bereavement. Typical kinds of thoughts, feelings, and behaviors occur, albeit in a pattern and intensity that vary and evolve over time, whereas in complicated grief, no matter how long they have been grieving, they still cannot come to terms with the death. It affects them more than the average person, which is why it is even more important for them to receive help from a qualified professional.

MOVING FORWARD AFTER A LOSS

It is difficult for anyone to move forward after a loss—and it is hard to say how to move forward after a loss, since everyone handles it differently. Any major life event like a loss can take an emotional toll and uproot your day-to-day life. However, you may take some steps to help you move forward more quickly and come to terms with your loss.

SELF-CARE FOR GRIEF

Loss is painful, but unresolved grief can lead to depression, anxiety, substance abuse, and other health problems according to Melinda Smith, M.A., and Jeanne Segal, P.h.D.

Simply talking to someone you care about can help you cope with your grief. Some people may be embarrassed that they are unable to cope on their own, but it is important to know that your friends, family or even a therapist can help you feel better faster than you might by yourself.

Taking care of yourself is important during grief – and that includes eating and sleeping. A hot bath, exercising, journaling, reading, talking with friends and getting outside are all important things you can do to take care of yourself during your period of grief.

Other coping skills for grief may include:

- Participating in memorials and other services to honor the person who passed.
- Self-expression. Don't be afraid to express yourself to others. Don't be embarrassed to cry.
- Talk to others. Even if you don't feel like talking, start a journal to write down your thoughts.
- Preserve memories by planting a tree or garden, or honor the person in another way — like a charity run or walk.
- Join a support group. There are many people that turn to support groups so they do not feel alone with their pain.

THERAPY FOR GRIEF

The way we grieve is determined by a number of factors, such as our relationship with the deceased, religious beliefs and previous experiences with death. For some people, grief can run its course and resolve on its own — but others may need therapy for grief.

You may want to consider therapy for grief if you experience any of the following symptoms:

- Suicidal thoughts or unrelenting depression
- Uncontrollable crying
- Loss of appetite
- Problems sleeping
- Panic attacks
- Trouble completing daily tasks
- Intensified longing for your loved one
- Avoided people or places that remind you of the departed
- Addictive behaviors
- Lack of self-care

A therapist can help you work through your grief, no matter how impossible moving on may feel. They will often have you talk about positive memories with your loved one and help you find ways to cope with the pain. It is important to seek a therapist if you are going through complicated grief and suffer from any of the symptoms mentioned above.

WHEN GRIEF DOESN'T GO AWAY

Grief may never end. You can read all the stages of grief and expect to keep moving to the next stage, but realize you are not going through this cycle as expected. You may feel like moving on is challenging or even impossible. Grief doesn't affect just one person. It affects a group of people. In times like these, it is important to lean on others who may also be struggling from this loss and support one another as you go through the grieving process.

A loss also continues to grow as time passes. As life goes on, it may be hard to realize that the person you lost is not moving on with you. Reminders of this can be hard and bring back the difficult memories of losing someone. It's important to remember that this experience is normal, and does not necessarily mean you are experiencing complicated grief.

You may never go back to who you were before you lost your loved one. It may have been your other half, your best friend or someone you always turned to. It is difficult to come to terms that that person is no longer in your life. However, if grief is getting in the way of your life for an excessive period of time or causes you distressing symptoms that you cannot cope with on your own, there may be options to seek treatment, such as:

MEDICATION

If you are suffering from complicated grief, it is important to see a medical doctor or psychiatrist who may be able to prescribe medicine to help you cope. Medication can help you cope with symptoms of grief such as depression, anxiety, and sleeplessness, and may include antidepressants, anti-anxiety medications or sleeping pills.

INPATIENT TREATMENT

There are different treatment facilities that can help you overcome grief if you find yourself struggling. These places have professionals around you all day to help you overcome your grief — allowing you to focus on nothing but finding coping strategies, bonding with others who have experienced grief and speak to therapists who can help you work through this loss.

These spaces are places that encourage healing and hope. The educated and compassionate staff members work tirelessly to ensure that they are providing the best care possible to every person who is struggling with grief.

Many of these facilities have people there to help you understand the grief and loss process. They have experience in the neurobiology of depression and specialize in helping bereaved patients develop new thought processes and behavior that can keep the brain healthy throughout the grief process. These facilities have therapists that help you identify and remove behavioral and attitudinal components that can complicate the grief process.

If you're struggling to get back to your normal and handle your grieving in a better way, consider taking some time to heal at a residential treatment facility like The Meadowglade. Contact us in order to learn more about how we can help you!

HUALAPAI RIVER RUNNERS DEPARTMENT - GCRC

Hello, my name is Shalimar Martinez. I was raised in Peach Springs with my mother Sheri Yellowhawk and Harrison Martinez Jr.
I have two sisters, Jazmyne James and Heather Yellowhawk. My Hualapai bands are Big Sandy and Hualapai Mountain. My son is Eli Elias, and he is 9 years old. I love my son to death and hope to be a good example for him. To show him to be strong no matter what life hits him with and to always stand strong. Just like my mother,

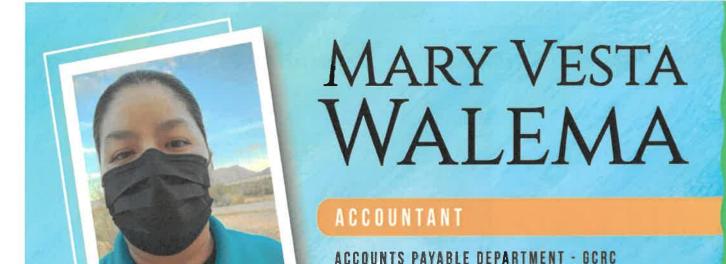

Gamyu

Sheri Yellowhawk. When growing up, she was always strong in my eyes. She was my role model. I wanted to be as strong as she was. No matter what obstacles were threw at her, she stood her ground. My mother was the strongest person I know. I would be lucky to be half as strong as she was. Love ya mom!

I have worked with the corporation since I was 16 years old. I started out as a busser at Diamond Creek Restaurant with the youth program. During the time I worked in the restaurant. I would see the workers from River running come in and they would talk about the river. One day I wanted to experience the river. My second year in the program, I became a swamper/packer for Hualapai River Runners. I was scared, but very excited. After a few trips, I fell in love with the river and the canyon. It was where I wanted to be. It was like home away from home. Once I turned the age of 18, I wanted to drive my own raft and be a river guide. To share with tourists of what I experience. I enjoyed hitting the rapids as hard as I could but keeping my people in my raft. Ha-Ha. Seeing the customers happy made me happy. After a couple of years of being a river guide. I went out to Pontoon to be a boat operator for a few years. It was a different experience and got to meet more people from all over the world. In 2011, I became pregnant with my son, and I moved over to the Hualapai River Runners Concierge. I enjoyed working on the computers and got to experience what the office staff did. After I had my son, I went back to Pontoon for less than a year and came back to the Concierge desk. I been at the desk ever since.

While working in different positions within river running. It helped me become more talkative and took me out of my comfort zone. I am quiet, but I push myself to speak more. I have got better at it than I did when I started out with the corporation. I enjoy my job with the river running department and especially with the employees I work with. I learned so much from each one of them. The staff always makes me laugh and there is never a dull moment.

To end my speech, I would like to say thank you to GCRC and Hualapai River Runners for allowing me to become apart of the team! Have a wonderful day and be awesome!

Kamathu = Gamyu, my name is Mary Vesta Walema. I am from Needles, Ca. My Parents are Isadora and Levi Evanston of Fort Mojave. My Father is the late Leland Walema Sr. I was raised on the Fort Mojave Indian Reservation, spent most of my summers in Peach Springs. I am enrolled in Fort Mojave, I am also Hualapai, Navajo, Chemehuevi. I love being involved with the culture, bird singing, dancing, powwow singing as well. I love my family!

In 2010 I started working at GCRC in the Food and Beverage department serving customers at Guano Point. 2011 I transferred to Tour Counter where I begin working in ticketing sales. It was a new good experience being able to explain the ticketing prices and give out information to customers. Meeting people from all over the world is a good experience in customer service. Few years into working with the Tour Counter I became a supervisor. I was able to guide and help team members assisting customers. At the end of 2015 I transferred over to the Payroll Department. I was a little hesitant at first, but I decided to take the job. I appreciate all the help that I got to fulfill my position here in payroll/accounting. It has been 11 years that I have been employed with GCRC. Before I worked with F&B Dept. I was a seasonal employee for HRR working in the gift shop they used to have at GCW. Also, in 2008 I worked with the Ambassador Dept for a few months.

My goal in life is one day to become a preservationist. I want to be able to share my cultural knowledge with future generations to come. Share some history on events that have taken place in my lifetime.

GCRC has given me the opportunity to excel and achieve a great work ethic. Thanks to all the managers, supervisors, and co-workers I worked with for always giving an extra push and giving me direction when needed. Appreciate them all, Looking forward to working with GCRC for as long as I can. Thank You!

ROADSIDE HELP

GRAND OPENING!

Welcome all!

Hello, my name is Joseph Salazar, I have created and developed Roadside Help here in Peach Springs, AZ. Roadside Help is a sole proprietorship that is insured, licensed in Mohave County, and educated as an Advanced automotive technician. I grew up in the town of Peach Springs, and know all too well about the lack of resources here especially for automotive repairs.

I set out to establish an automotive repair resource in Peach Springs due to the lack of resources for our locals here in town. Everyone is typically left no choice but to drive their vehicle 45 miles to the resources we need to have vehicles serviced, repaired, and preventative maintenance performed. I spent years learning, and obtaining information on how to go about even opening up a automotive repair service here. I own all my own tools, and have reliable transportation to meet your needs upon request. It is my joy to announce Roadside Help is officially up and running!

Roadside Help offers all mobile repair services primarily in Peach Springs, but includes all surrounding areas within Mohave County. Contract work, POs, personal hire I am available for all needs whether you are a department here in Peach Springs, or a local needing some service work.

Services Roadside Help offers -
